

www.markswatson.com

"I Have A Dream" Vs. "I Have A Drone"

The Press, under the direction of the powers that control the Obama White House continues to attempt to make comparisons between Obama and Dr. King. Additionally Obama's use of the King/Lincoln Symbology will be evident during his inauguration.

I think it should be noted that while some people will say they find something 'highly offensive' when they do not really mean it, I want to make clear that I really do mean it, it is personally highly offensive to compare Dr. King and President Obama. If a person wants to worship Obama and idolize him, that is their business, not mine. But before anyone attempts to cast dispersions on Dr. King by comparing these two men as somehow similar, we need to go back and look at the record. Dr. Kings words and actions and match them up with President Obama's actions.

This link is from a the local Black community radion station here in DC, WPFW (download Here - SuperFunkySoulPowerHour) and was put together by a man named Jared Ball. Now these guys are a definitely NOT politically correct and are totally 'black ' in scope, but I think what is found in this one hour audiofile really lays it out to you just why comparing the two is not disingenuous, but that these comparisons being done today are deliberately disingenuous.

I think what we all need to keep in mind and what this show misses is that Dr. King was Christian minister first. He made that clear in many speeches and never departed from the basic premises of the Gospel of Christ. It's why some have called him a prophet and in the broadest sense, I think he was. He was a prophet whom God used to help redirect America's energies from the legacies of racial hared, poverty and militarism, towards something more enlightened and Godly. The American establishment did to him what they do to most prophets, they killed him... After Hoovers FBI persecuted him.

On another note, a Symposium on a Vision For A New America had its annual event yesterday, and it was pretty good. I listened to parts of it last night on my little mp3 player/fm radio. I know many Black folks don't like Tavis Smiley because he has not joined the "lets turn off our brains, poke our eyes out and worship Obama" club that permeates an increasingly impoverished and dysfunctional Black America. In short, he remembers the real Dr. King and what he stood for and is not going to let a mis-educated and misdirected Black America, stop him from reminding us how we really got where we are today and why so many of us are not moving forward but are rapidly falling behind in every measurable category.. This includes Family life, abortion, income levels, employment rates, prison stats, child poverty... you name it - if there is a negative statistic, Black America usually is at or near the top of it. The trends have only accelerated under Obama.

Black, White, Latino, Native American, or even my rare Eskimo readers, take a little time and listen to this audio program, you may not agree with everything in it, but you will come away with a very different view of Barak Obama and what he really has stood for, stands for and continue to push over the next four years.

Brothers and sisters. I liked Dr. King because he was a Christian and abhorred violence, hate and injustice. My time in the military made me really come to hate war and violence and the abominable way America uses war to fund powerful interests here in America. I consistently saw what the skin color and economic status of almost all of America's war victims were and are.

Dr. King was courageous about fighting this power while Obama has fawned over it, funded it, empowered it and bailed it out... with Public Funds. In short King fought this system, Obama slavishly serves it. As long as they can keep Black America on their faces in worship and adoration of Obama, they can continue to send Black America backwards with little or no resistance.

I think these comments are needed as well as we move into this most heated Gun Control debate. Back in MLK's day, things were very different and one of the reasons why we have Gun Control today at the Federal level and also in many States (like California), was because Black people took to protecting their communities with firearms when they could not count on the police to do it, which were often populated with Racists and Agents of Hoovers FBI who were looking for ways to create incidents to kill black Leaders. The actions of these groups were one of the real reasons the Gun Control Legislation of 1968 came about. Hoover and the FBI viewed Black Groups like the Panthers, the greatest threat to America. These Gun laws were mostly about keeping guns out of the hands of Black Organizations who were protecting their communities, though admittedly not always as responsibly as they should have. The 'power' saw a threat and moved to quash it.

Former Superior Court Judge Lise Perlman wrote a book that deals with some of the issues behind the trial of Huey Newton back in those tumultuous days and talks a bit on how it effected Gun Control. In fact according to some, it was indeed the Panthers pro-gun stance that began to put them on the political map and at one time. Believe it or not, the Black Panthers and the NRA were protesting together.

A very informative interview with Judge Perlman can be found on this link. It's pretty good, so check it out. This is the history your MSM does not want you to know, read or study. They want to re-write history so that wealth continues to flow to the wealthy out of the hands of the poor and they do that by comparing men like Obama to MLK whipping up people into half-witted adoration driven by political nonsense, while the real power picks your pocket, steals your home, raises your taxes, starts new wars all the while getting immunized by the President from any prosecution of their crimes and thus staying out of jail while your kids sit in prison for having an ounce of weed.

Finally I should say this. I have not, and will not go 'militant' on you. But I think it extremely important that when we look at these issues from Obama to Gun Control; Racism to Poverty, Bailouts to Food Stamps we must get a true historical perspective and not be brainwashed by clever re-writes of it by journalists in the pay of the 'power'. Also, I don't want anyone to come away with the idea that I dislike our President. While it is true I strongly oppose most of his policies and am quite disappointed by those whom he surrounds himself with, I also know that in order to get that office, you have to cut so many deals that you are essentially a figurehead for those interests with whom you cut your deals. So I will not demonize the man, just many of his policies.

Dr. King rejected the militantism of groups like the Panthers and Malcolm X. I think this was very much because he was a dedicated Christian and ordained minister. He got so much done not because he used the Gun, but rather used powerful words on justice, love and peace that mobilized a nation. That and the power of prayer brought serious change. It is his ways that I hope Christians all over the world mimic. Yet just because I have dedicated my life to Christ and non-violence and exhort other men and women of God to do the same, does not give me the right to tell someone else that he should be that meek when someone comes to his neighborhood or house to do violence and mischief to his or her home and family. That I think is a decision that rests with every man and woman and their own conscience and it is the height of hypocrisy to sign orders giving armed protection to you and yours while moving slowly to take that right from someone else especially in light of the fact that many cities in America are so financially strapped that they cannot afford to keep a viable police force.

M.

---

For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.
(Eph 2:8-9)

Lest any man should boast. I think what God is saying here is that God wants us to look squarely in the mirror and look at what we really are and then acknowledge that we, who have made Christ our Lord and Savior (let none of us forget the 'Lord' part of this) are given salvation as a gift and no matter what struggles we endure for his name's sake, salvation is not dependent on us but on what Christ did for us on the cross. All the work was done by Christ on his cross. It is what is often referred to as the sufficiency of Christ.

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.
(Phi 4:13)

What this does not mean (as so many teach and even more live) is that once we are saved, we can just keep on sinning and doing whatever we want. If indeed a person has been saved, God's Holy Spirit dwells in that person and guides, teaches and admonishes him as we continue our walk with God. A person who just keeps on sinning or continually puts self first in their life after they claim to have been 'saved' almost certainly has not been born of God.

*For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.
For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together.
(Rom 8:13-17)*

God is leading us to greater righteousness, but lest any man should swell up with pride at his or her 'righteousness' God makes it clear that the work of Salvation was accomplished by Christ on his cross, whose name is blessed forever more. Don't swell up with Pride. Paul had to deal with that one and the Lord gave him a thorn in the flesh, lest his pride got the better of him (2Cor 12:7ff)

---

In Christ,

Written this day of our Lord,
21 January, 2013

Mark S. Watson
www.markswatson.com